Health Insurance Policy Document

Meridian Bloom Health

Whole-person care that treats mental and physical health as connected.

Member promise: Behavioral-health support is presented as a standard part of care, without stigma or separate navigation burdens.

Coverage policy: Covered outpatient therapy, psychiatry, and substance-use services follow the member's plan cost share and network rules.

Access standard: The digital behavioral-health directory displays current availability, language capabilities, and telehealth options when known.

Service commitment: Urgent behavioral-health requests are triaged the same day; crisis situations are directed to local emergency resources.

Policy overview

This policy document summarizes the fictional plan's member-facing commitments, coverage administration, and service standards. It is intended to help members understand how to access care, request support, and raise concerns. Coverage remains subject to the applicable plan certificate, exclusions, authorization rules, and governing law.

Coverage and access

Covered services must be medically necessary, provided by an eligible provider, and received under the member's plan terms. Members should confirm network participation, referral requirements, cost sharing, and prior authorization before scheduled care. Emergency services should be sought immediately; members should call local emergency services when a serious or life-threatening condition exists.

Care coordination

The plan may coordinate primary care, specialist care, pharmacy services, behavioral health, and post-treatment follow-up. Members can request help locating an in-network provider, understanding a referral, arranging language assistance, or identifying accessible care. Care coordination supports access but does not change the benefits or exclusions in the governing plan documents.

Utilization review

When prior authorization or clinical review is required, the plan communicates the information needed, the review timeframe, and the decision rationale. Members may submit additional clinical records, ask questions about a decision, and use the reconsideration or appeal process described in their plan materials.

Member services and governance

Member information is protected and used only for permitted care, payment, operations, and legal purposes. Members may request accessibility accommodations, interpreter services, a supervisor review, or an appeal of an adverse benefit decision. Complaints and directory corrections are logged, investigated, and answered within the applicable service standard.

How to raise a concern

A member may contact customer service, request a supervisor, submit a written grievance, or authorize another person to act on the member's behalf. A written response identifies the issue reviewed, the decision, the relevant plan provision, and any available next step or external review right.
